

Images courtesy American Antiquarian Society

More of the Puzzles

The Weekly Messenger
March 4, 1840

MORE OF THE PUZZLES.

We have received the following note from our enigmatical friend J. H.

Mr. Editor, you have certainly fulfilled your promise to the very letter, and I hereby acknowledge that you did decypher my puzzle correctly in your last weekly paper. Pointing out the precise words by which I meant to convey my meaning. And moreover I am perfectly convinced from what I have seen, that you can decypher any piece of writing in which arbitrary signs are used instead of the letters of the alphabet.

J. H.

Our fair correspondent at the Metropolis, will find the solution of her puzzle in the following line::

WASHINGTON CITY, D. C. {
Feb. 8th, 1840. }

Dear Sir—Having heard of your skill in interpreting letters written in arbitrary signs, we send you this, which, if translated by you, and published in the Messenger, will give much pleasure to

MANY LADIES.

T. S., of Boquet, N. Y. will find the solution of his cypher on the burth page.

We will reply to J. R. H. and our friend of Bedford, Lower Canada, in our next.